This course is an introduction to the Dead Sea Scrolls, perhaps the most spectacular archaeological discovery of the twentieth century. Along with the content, historical context, and discovery of the scrolls, the course also includes discussion about these and related manuscripts in current events. Issues ranging from antiquities markets, copyrights, modern religious and political narratives, and high-profile manuscript forgeries will illuminate the interactions between the past and the present.